

The Carmel Pine Cone

Editor's Column

Cliff says I should say something about Mexico in the Pine Cone. Since we got back from our vacation Thursday I've said so much about Mexico to everybody with whom I have come in contact that I expect that when we return to Mexico for our vacation next fall we shall find our friends, neighbors and fellow citizens already established there.

Ah, Mexico!

We especially recommend Guadalajara to the Carmel Planning Commission, to study the boulevards, parks, fountains, set-backs and traffic flow. This could be built into a life-time project and life is pleasant in Guadalajara.

I wanted to bring back one of the engaging Mexican burros that haunt the Mexican Camino Real but Cliff wanted to know how I'd make him mind. "They don't understand anything but Mexican," he pointed out.

Returning to Carmel Thursday afternoon I checked immediately and found out that they have a beginners adult school class in Mexican at Carmel High, Tuesday and Thursday nights, 7:00 to 9:00 o'clock. I enrolled the same night. Mexican I find is far from the heavy sledding I've had for two years with German. I should be able to learn enough of it in a year to talk to a burro.

Cliff doesn't have to learn Mexican. While listening to the Sunday night municipal band concert in the plaza in front of the cathedral, he carried on a discourse with the Guadalajaran sitting on the bench with us. She warned him against a flying bug on his collar. He brushed it off. She told him one had got in her ear, once. He observed that that must have been a harrowing experience. All this with gestures, not a word spoken on either side. This was just as well because the band was playing an arrangement of one of Elvira's arias from I Puritani, the flute doing Elvira's coloratura fancy work. The applause was terrific. The Guadalajarans like their band; and so do I. I suspect part of it, especially the wood winds, are city symphony orchestra musicians. The symphony gives concerts on the third Friday of the month in the handsome theatre facing another fountain-decked plaza. I wanted to stay for that but Cliff predicted that on the third Friday of the month we'd be in Carmel. As usual his prediction came true.

"We saw the brutal, beautiful Orozco murals the day before we left, which is probably the prime reason for the nagging feeling of wanting to go back. "Drink of the bitter waters of truth, and though they may not please you, they create a thirst that drives you back to the well." An old Spanish proverb.

Sculptor Louis Mayer's Birthday Present, His Wife's New Poetry Book

By RAYLYN PENNEY

When Cezanne was king, when expressions like "pure color" and "art nouveau" were being heard for the first time, Louis Mayer began a career as artist and promoter of the American artistic heritage which will reach another milestone Saturday, his 91st birthday.

However, on this occasion the internationally-known artist and sculptor will slip into an unaccustomed role as subject. Dedicated to him, his work and his happy birthday is a new book by Mr. Mayer's wife, poet Dora Hagemeyer.

The collection of poems by Mrs. Mayer will bear the title Evening Comes Golden. Its publication is due this week.

A long-time friend of Carl Sandburg—Mr. Mayer and the Chicago poet even bear a certain resemblance—the artist is often asked about his friendship with another beloved and heroic personage, Dr. Albert Schweitzer of Alsace and Lambarene.

"When people say, 'I understand you and Schweitzer are old friends,' I tell them, 'Not exactly. We are both old and we are certainly friends, but our association began only in 1948 when I went to Europe to do a bust of him.'"

It was, in fact, a reproduction of

Lotta Crabtree At Community Dinner Here 45 Years Ago

The Thanksgiving edition of the Pine Cone, 45 years ago, gives a picture of Carmel in some ways similar to today, in others, very different.

A dinner for more than 100 townspeople was served at Pine Inn, cost 75 cents per person. Perry Newberry was in charge of the after-dinner program which consisted of story telling and readings, and ended with a spirited Virginia reel. Townsfolk were commended for not interrupting the visiting celebrity, Lotta Crabtree, as she ate her dinner as a Pine Inn guest.

Two weeks previously Carmel officially had sent the actress California poppies picked on the Mission Ranch. She had expressed a desire in San Francisco newspaper.

Council To See Junípero Plan At Dec. Meeting

Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker will present a plan for improving Junípero Avenue south of Ocean to the city council at its December 7 meeting, he told the Pine Cone yesterday.

This is a tender subject in Carmel. The first plan for improving Junípero Avenue south of Ocean was worked out by Howard Cousins when he was Carmel City Engineer. According to City Engineer Clayton Neill who is drawing up Commissioner Whitaker's plan, Cousins' plan called for parallel roads, "one six feet higher than the other." This was to be a WPA project and was shelved in 1930.

Douglas Craig had a plan when he was on the city council a decade ago. This was shelved.

There was the Livingston Plan five years ago which would have made Junípero street a freeway for Highway No. 1 traffic. This was buried.

Two years ago James Buffington, when he was street commissioner, presented a plan, and withdrew it hastily.

Whitaker, elected this spring, asked council approval of his working up a plan, and was given it. At that time Admiral C. W. Fisher, chairman of the Carmel Citizens' Committee, asked if

Thanksgiving Eve Service Tonight At All Saints'

A Thanksgiving service will be held at All Saints' Episcopal Church on Thanksgiving Day at 10:00 o'clock in the morning. Those attending are asked to bring offerings of non-perishable food or toys for distribution at Christmas time to those not as materially fortunate as Carmel residents. The gifts will be distributed through the local Salvation Army and Department of Social Relations of the Episcopal Diocese.

For the first time, the Church of the Wayfarer and Carmel Presbyterian Church will join with All Saints' for a Thanksgiving Eve service tonight. The choirs of the three churches and the Reverend David Hill, All Saints' rector, Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer, and Dr. Joseph M. Ewing, minister of the Carmel Presbyterian Church will take part in tonight's 8:00 o'clock observance at All Saints'.

Masses will be celebrated at Carmel Mission Basilica on Thanksgiving Day in the morning at 7:30 and 9:00 o'clock.

Dora Hagemeyer's New Book Of Poetry Also "Comes Golden"

Those who know and love the poetry of Dora Hagemeyer (Mrs. Louis Mayer) and look forward to the appearance of a new book of hers have cause to rejoice in Louis Mayer's birthday. Evening Comes Golden published this week by the Pine Cone Press is a gift to her distinguished husband. The title and several of the poems speak directly to him, among them the beautiful Late Love, and That Only.

Emotion flows warmly in the lines of this latest book and, as in all her work, there is her joy in fields, trees, birds, sky, rain. There is her facility of phrase, her gift for illuminating the familiar.

In the Fields of Spring are the verses:

"The swift and easy sequence of the flowers,
Bright facets of the eternity in time,"

She hears, "the cellos under the singing."

There are also poems reflecting the depths of her thought, providing a rich variety. As with all her books, Evening Comes Golden gives us the deep satisfaction of seeing through her eyes and of living for a while in her serenity. This new book, as well as evening, comes golden. —Wilma Cook.

Commission Meeting To Consider Plans For Business Area

Carmel planning commissioners will meet at 4:00 o'clock this afternoon to discuss the following applications for building permits and construction plans in the business district: Application of Carmel Furnishings to remodel the interior of the former Antonetti's restaurant on Dolores Street into a furniture store; three buildings at Pine Terrace cooperative apartment development, to contain 11 apartments, 11 off-street parking spaces provided, submitted by Havasco of Carmel; a Purity Store application to remodel the existing building, add an addition, rearrange parking and driveways and approve landscaping; consider plans for the Standard Oil station at Junípero and Fourth; extend the building permit for Fred Farr until February 22 for apartments and offices at Monte Verde and Seventh.

Commissioners will also consider setting a zone of interest for rezoning Block 79 at the request of Willard Newman. He is owner of the triangular piece of property at Ocean and Mountain View. The land is now zoned residential. Mr. Newman would like it rezoned C-1-L. It is at present in multiple dwelling use as Forest Lodge.

This morning at 10:45 o'clock Jeannie Roeder and Pamela Petersen received the diamond pin award at an assembly at the high school. For five semesters they have won 10 points each semester on the honor roll.

Gold pins were awarded to students who had achieved the 10 point goal on the honor roll for three semesters; silver pins for two semester 10 point showing; bronze pins for one semester. A earns two points, B one point, F disqualifies.

The scholarship pin awards were instituted jointly by the Carmel PT-A and Carmel Rotary two years ago. Rotary has undertaken financial responsibility for the pins, though the Carmel Lions gave them last year.

Five students received gold pins: Carlton Macy, Ann Saulsbury, Page van Loben Sels, Mike Walsh and Margaret Abel.

Silver pin winners are: Gay Beauchamp, Nancy Bibb, Gail Dutra, Walt Powell, Patricia Warren.

Winning bronze pins were: Franci Antonich, Natalie Doner, Diana Farr, Harold Faulkner, Francis Grey, Helga Gunn, Bruce Hyndman, Royce Johnson, Ginger Laky, Karen Norberg, Mike Sherry, Stanley Smith and Ruth Stevens.

The awards are for honors won during the spring semester, February to June. Next awards assembly will be held in April for honors earned this fall.

Carmel High School Principal Warren Edwards presented the pins, and the assembly was topped off with a Thanksgiving musical program by John Farr's music department students.

PADRES OPEN HOOP SEASON
DECEMBER SECOND

Carmel High's basketball squads swing into league action next week as the Live Oak Acorns invade the Carmel gym for lightweight and varsity action on Friday, December 2. The Padres are defending champions in the B-division of the CCAL and will be logical favorites to finish on top again this season. Besides home-and-home games with all their league opponents, the Padre eagles also tangle with Ceres, Menlo-Atherton, and Buchser in practice encounters and will participate in the Gustine Invitational Tournament.

FIVE LETTERMEN ON PADRE VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

Coach Dan Yurkovich greeted 16 experienced basketball players when the Padres first took the floor last week and five letter winners are on hand to provide the nucleus for a well-balanced squad. Lettermen returning for action this season are Mike Draper, a nifty play-making guard; Chris and John Wilkin, a pair of sturdy front line performers; and the guard duo of Doyle Clayton and Paul Rice. Up from the jayvees for a try at varsity action are Bob Little, Mike Dunnham, Scott Forbes, Bud Cunningham, Frank Mayo, Jim Brown, Nick Molitor, and Bob Blair. Lightweight award-winners Frank Bucher and John Odello have also jumped to the varsity this season. Greg Hulsey, a transfer lettermen from Oroville, Washington adds further experience and size to the already rangy Padre squad.

The Padre junior-varsity squad, mentored by Dick Lawitzke, has 14 candidates going through their paces and the prospects look very bright for another successful season. Good height plus experienced personnel at every position gives Coach Lawitzke a good hand in the jayvee competition. Manning the junior-varsity squad are Pete Morse, John Marshall, Alan Marshall, Bob Palma, Barry Sherman, Rick Baldwin, Jim Kelley, Pete Foster, Mike Taaffe, George Pullman, Bob Wakefield, Tony Belucci, Dave Harber, and Steve Fairfield.

With over 30 lightweights vying for a spot on the squad, Coach Harold Lippstreu is having a tough time paring the squad to a workable size. However, by the time the referee's whistle calls for the first tip-off on December 2, the Little Padres should be ready to floor a going quintet.

SIX PADRE GRIDDERS ON ALL-LEAGUE SQUAD

Led by Captain John Wilkin who was named the Outstanding Player in the CCAL B-division, Carmel's championship football team placed six players on the All-league team, earning four places on the offensive team and getting three spots on the defensive eleven. Wilkin was the only player selected for both the offensive and defensive teams.

Scott Forbes, a fine pass-catching end, nailed down one of the wing spots on the offensive team while Paul Jones, a rugged defensive specialist, was honored with an end spot on the stopper crew. Chris Wilkin garnered an offensive tackle spot with brother John earning a guard spot on offense and a tackle spot on defense. Mike Draper, Carmel's little all-purpose back, was a unanimous selection for a halfback position on the offensive team and George Pollock was picked as a defensive halfback.

Commissioners Vote To Expand Big Sur

The State Park Commission, meeting in Monterey Friday, voted to add 5,000 acres to Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. This expansion will be placed in the commission's next five-year program, with cost estimated at $5 million by the State Division of Beaches and Parks.

Park commissioners saw the enlarged park site from helicopters on Thursday, on a trip which also included an aerial survey of the Coast road proposed scenic highway. They stopped at the cliff-side home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Owings for luncheon. Mr. Owings, this month, presented to the county planning commission the coast master plan prepared by his firm, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill. This plan recommended the 5,000 acre increase at Big Sur Park.

The added acreage will all be on the ocean side of the coast road. About half of the 5,000 acres is on the ranch owned by Miss Frances Molera of San Francisco. Bulk of the remaining acreage to be acquired by the State is now national forest. The rest of the land is in private ownership.

Big Sur Park now has 813 acres with 218 campsites. Plans include an additional 100 campsites across the river.

Supervisor Tom Hudson arranged the coastal survey by Army helicopter. Monterey County paid for the cost.

PONY CLUB EXCHANGE

College Degree

Carmel's representative at the Monterey Bay Life Underwriters Association luncheon held locally during the week was Mrs. Helen J. Small of the New York Life Insurance Company.

Among many technical matters covered at this meeting were some recently released figures on the degree to which Americans visit their doctors. People in the West visit their doctors 5.7 times per year; in the East 5.4 times, and in the Midwest 4.7 times.

In college degree families it was 6.0 visits per person per year while families with less than five years of education averaged 4.3 visits.

Also families living on less than $2,000 per year had a rate of 4.6 physician visits and families with over $7,000 averaged 5.7 visits. Children under five years average 6.2 doctor visits as compared to 6.8 visits for senior citizens past 65.

Mrs. Small has for several years been studying for the coveted CLU degree which is the Life Insurance degree comparable to the MD of medicine or the CPA of accountancy.

Arena Blanca Announces Winners

Winners of the October contest for poems on thankfulness were announced at the November 16 meeting of the Arena Blanca Chapter of Chaparral Poets. First place went to Lois Wilson, second to Catherine Ramsey, third to Blanche Moke, and honorable mention to Robert Bunney.

The group's Christmas party will be December 10, at the home of Olivia and George Young. Each member is asked to bring a gift and an original Christmas poem. A poem by Bernice Minarik represented Arena Blanca at the eighteenth annual John Steven McGroarty Pilgrimage. The Poetry Day program at the Tujunga home of McGroarty, who was the state's third Poet Laureate, included the reading of one poem from each chapter of the California Federation of Chaparral Poets.

Briefs...

Good news for ducks, at least for redhead and canvasback species. Outdoor California, state department of fish and game monthly, reports in the current issue:

Federal hunting regulations were drawn this year to help these two ducks respond to the improvements expected next year in conditions on the breeding grounds.

Last year's hunting of these two species, restricted though it was, took a heavy toll of the adult birds and left a void which only can be filled by birds from this year's broods—provided that hunters make sure the bird in their gunshot is not a canvasback or a redhead."

So make sure.

Our duck tourists are settling in Carmel River Mouth and the lake at the Navy School for their winter stay, bufflehead, pintails and mallards at the river mouth, and the ruddy duck, of course, which is always with us. At the Navy school pond are ring-neck and the rare European widgeon, which first put in an appearance here three years ago.

Of the nearly decimated canvasbacks and redheads, "there are a few canvasbacks," says Laidlow Williams. "I haven't seen any redheads this fall, but they are rare in this area, so that is not significant."

The ducks will continue to arrive. Their peak population density is in January. In March and April they make off for summer quarters. Meanwhile, they lend interest to an evening walk to the river mouth. And there they are protected, all species.

A Southern California member has proposed that the Sierra Club require new members to take a loyalty oath to the effect that they are not now nor ever have been affiliated with any organization that proposes the overthrow of the government by force and violence.

There are sufficient signatures (over three hundred) on his petition to force the directors to put the proposal to a vote of the membership. Two thirds required for passage.

Our well-meaning southern California member has visions of Reds infiltrating the Sierra Club though one can't imagine what they would accomplish.

After covering ten or twelve miles on foot, over the mountains and through the canyons, pack on back, Sierra Club members, gathering around their campfire, look to their bladders, sing a few songs of "There's a Long, Long Trail A-winding vintage, yawn and one by one crawl off into their sleeping bags.

The spectacle of someone trying to incite these people to overthrow the government by force and violence is amusing to one of them.

The Sierra Club is trying to prevent the government from overthrowing the scenery.

Reducing The Sea Lion Population Difficult, Expensive, Ineffective

Last year the California Fish and Game Commission under pressure from commercial fishermen, announced that the department's hunters would undertake a mass slaughter of sea lions to reduce the population."

Conservationists throughout the state protested, Carmel's Lobos League leading the outcry. Mrs. Nathaniel Owings of Big Sur "saw people" in San Francisco and Sacramento, and the slaughter was stopped.

The writer of the following article, which is reprinted from the current issue of Outdoor California, state department of fish and game publication, gives the history of the department's policy on sea lion "population control," with the conclusion we have used as a headline for this article. The report appeared in Outdoor California under the title, California's Controversial Sea Lions.

By Richard S. Croker

Chief, Marine Resources Branch

In any discussion of sea lions, people can be divided into two different camps—those who hate them and those who love them. There does not appear to be a middle ground, or halfway meeting point.

The history of agitation to do away with sea lions in California dates back to 1899. In all cases, proposals for population reductions have been met by counterreaction.

Recorded high point of the sea lion population in California was in the 1850's. From about 1860 to 1870 many thousands were killed and rendered for oil. An era of protection followed. By 1899 another move to reduce the herds had started.

Another 10 years saw a protection move in 1909, followed in 1927 by a reverse trend. Since then the pressures have swung sporadically.

Sea lions will never be as abundant in California as they were a hundred years ago, when tens of thousands of them occupied the rocks and beaches all along the coast. The pressures of human population have driven them from many areas and they are found in numbers only in isolated places.

Counts made at various times indicated that the Stellar sea lion population of Central and Northern California varies from 5,000 to 7,000. The California sea lions fluctuate much more violently, from about 1,000 to 13,000. Because the center of their population is in Mexico, and they inhabit an area characterized by wider fluctuations in both water temperature and fish abundance than the Stellers of Northern California, this wide range in numbers is to be expected.

The Stellar sea lion is generally found north of Point Conception and the California sea lion, a smaller animal, is generally found south of that point. However, the line is not drawn very fine and there is some overlapping.

Both species of sea lion found in California are known to feed on fish and squid. Because of the difficulty in capturing sea lions while they are feeding, their rapid rate of digestion, their long periods of fasting, and their habit of regurgitating stomach contents, definitive food habits studies are largely lacking.

Many opinions are current as to the amount of food that a sea lion will consume but facts are not available. A generous average would be 10 pounds a day for an adult. This is somewhere near the amounts fed in zoos to captive animals. Food consumption is erratic.

There is no evidence that sea lion predation has had any effect on food and game fish resources. As a matter of fact, the fishery resources of California are in a generally good condition. Except for occasional local shortages, few species are less abundant than formerly. Of the important species, only the sardine and the California halibut are seriously scarcer than in the "good old days," and it would be inconceivable to blame the sea lion for the scarcity of two such dissimilar fishes. Even the salmon, with much of its freshwater habitat adversely affected by the inroads of human population, is holding its own remarkably well.

It is obvious that the total fish and squid consumption by 15 or 20 thousand sea lions is considerable. However, most of their food species are of little or no value to man and many of these species themselves are active predators on valuable food and game varieties.

Even the most biased sea lion lovers must admit that sea lions can and do destroy nets and lines, not to mention fish caught in the gear.

No good figures are available on losses to gear. When fishing is good, fishermen in general shrug off sea lion damage as one of their many occupational hazards. As a result, reports are few. What is a half dozen sea bass or salmon when the day's catch is a hundred? What is one more rip in a gill net or another lost hook when the gear is taking a beating from the fish anyway?

But when fishing is poor, every fish counts. Six damaged fish out of a total catch of a dozen is something else again. Then the complaints mount. Then the agitation to kill sea lions commences.

Sea lions have considerable esthetic value. They bring pleasure to many people who find enjoyment in watching their capers at numerous points along the coast. In many places they are a prime tourist attraction. Furthermore, who can deny the pleasure derived from the clever performers in zoos, circuses and aquaria, all of which are California sea lions?

Aside from their esthetic value, sea lions undoubtedly play an important role in maintaining a balance among the living resources of the sea. For example, we have mentioned that the hake is their leading item of diet. The hake is known to be a destructive predator. (Continued on Page Thirteen) subject, were introduced. Their wedding in Europe in 1957 was followed by a private organ chorale by Schweitzer, who had just officiated at the ceremony.

Sculptor Mayer's Birthday Gift, Wife's Poetry Book

Louis Mayer of Milwaukee, who was born there of German immigrant parents November 26, 1869, went abroad to study art in 1892. He went first to Weimar (where Richard Strauss was conductor at the time) and managed to narrow his inherited interests in music, painting, sculpture and writing to painting alone long enough to study with the famous technician Max Thedy.

He followed this up with work at the two acknowledged art centers of the world at the most interesting time of their evolution, Munich, where he studied at the Munich Academy with impressionist painter Paul Hoecker, and Paris, where he enrolled at the famous Julian Academy and worked with Benjamin Constant and Jean-Paul Laurens.

"I kept trying to enroll for classes in sculpture," says Mr. Mayer, whose international reputation is based mostly on the excellence of his sculptured heads and busts of famous people, "but as a matter of fact I never did manage to study sculpture in Europe."

In 1898 he returned to Milwaukee, where an earlier strong interest in art was beginning to wane. "We had called Milwaukee 'the German Athens of America,' because of the concentration of culture there. My family grew up singing German chorales and reciting Goethe. To maintain the city as an American center of art became the leitmotif of my life."

Some of the ways Mr. Mayer chose to carry out this worthy leitmotif included furnishing weekly columns on art to both German- and English-language newspapers, starting an art school, lecturing to clubs on art appreciation, and organizing the Milwaukee Artists group.

Out of the latter has grown the Milwaukee Art Association, the Milwaukee Art Institute and a municipal Art Commission of which Mr. Mayer was the first secretary.

In those days the artist was engaged in a successful career as a portrait painter. Among his better known portraits were those done for the Burlington library, the State Historical Collection at Des Moines and for the Springer Collection at the Smithsonian Institution.

Later, in 1913, he moved to a studio in New York City, where his interests turned more and more to sculpture. Although he received many commissions, much of his work was done as a "labor of love."

Working from a life mask and photographs, he produced a bust of Abraham Lincoln which was acclaimed by Lincoln scholars as the best they had seen, and especially pleased Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the martyred president.

Other Mayer heads and busts, all acquired for various public and government buildings in the East, include those of Emerson, Whitman, Senator Robert LaFollette Sr., and Eugene Debs.

In the late twenties Louis Mayer succeeded Massey Rhind as sculptor for the McKinley Birthplace Memorial.

It was perhaps music, Mr. Mayer says, which drew him and Albert Schweitzer together during the three months in 1951 that Mayer spent with the doctor at the latter's Gunsbach home. "We knew all the same chorales, dozens and dozens of them." In the hectic days while Schweitzer received hundreds of visitors from dignitaries paying respects, to villagers in trouble, Mayer studied his subject's many moods.

Just before Schweitzer was due to return to Africa, when a crushing exhaustion had all but put him into a sickbed, he chided a secretary for discarding some letters asking for appointments. Mayer says Schweitzer was disturbed because those letters might have been from people who needed his help most.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayer, whose Carmel home is at Fourth Avenue and Randall Way, spend the summer months at the Mayer home in Fishkill, near Poughkeepsie, in New York state. Mrs. Mayer, native of New Zealand, has been a Carmel resident for the past 36 years. She is the mother of David Hagemeyer of Carmel, and Max Hagemeyer of Sonora. Her poetry is widely read and for a number of years she was poetry editor of The Pine Cone.

Mr. Mayer's honors have been

Weygers To Give Thanksgiving Day Lecture Show

For those who may want to enjoy an "after dinner" treat on Thanksgiving Day, Alexander G. Weygers is again bringing his beautiful color slide projections to the Golden Bough Circle Theater in Carmel. At 8:15 o'clock on the Holiday, Mr. Weygers returns with his lecture show entitled, Elements of the Sea.

Showing Art in nature, Artist Weygers, using his camera as a tool, has selected from the tide-pools and beaches animal and plant forms in all their infinite tail of color, form and design.

This will give those unable to get tickets for the last two performances an opportunity to attend. Weygers had promised the Thanksgiving Day show to those who were turned away.

CARMEL BOYS ACTIVE AT SHATTUCK

Tonight at Shattuck School in Fairbault, Minnesota, William McCudden will assist as a member of the production crew, the performance of The Rainmaker. The comedy is being presented as part of the school's Thanksgiving night program in Shumway Hall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. McCudden of Hatton Road.

Bain Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Smith of Carmel, is on the yearbook staff at Shattuck.

numerous over the years and include a silver medal for a portrait painting at the World's Fair at San Francisco in 1915, the bronze medal for decorative sculpture at the Institute of Minnesota, honorable and special mention at the Chicago and Milwaukee Art Institutes, and representation in exhibits at the National Academy and at Allied Artists of America in New York, the Pennsylvania Academy at Philadelphia, the Corcoran Galleries in Washington, D.C., and the Carnegie Internationals at Pittsburgh.

Of all good ways to start the day, Mr. and Mrs. Mayer have hit on one of the pleasantest. They play the chorales which have been so much a part of Mr. Mayer's heritage, he on the piano, she on the cello.

"I am not a pianist, though," Mr. Mayer says. Since only a little earlier he had said he was not the sculptor he'd like to be either, we did not take him seriously. At 91 he is a hard-working artist whose studio holds several projects in process. His spirited conversation contains mirror-clear memories of events of the past eight decades, quotations from the poets and philosophers, and rare reflections on the lifetime of a man of independent thought and a great heart.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Carmel, Calif.
Nov. 19, 1960

Dear Pine Cone Editor:

Got up Friday morning and found sun shining, squirrels chasing each other through the oaks and birds chirping; altogether a very beautiful day. Had some coffee and thought it would be safe to turn on TV as everything would be quiet for a while on the New Frontier. Telephone rang and neighbor asked, "Did you see the Pine Cone?" — "Yes." — "Did you see an article by Mr. Norberg?" — "Yes, but never read 'em — very low entertainment rating — no jokes." — "Well, you better read it." I realized guns were blazing again on the Frontier.

Found article by Mr. Norberg. He wants taxpayers in the low rent district to help support the tourist trap in Carmel, etc. etc. etc. All right. I can buy everything I need in the unincorporated area so why pay sales tax and other business taxes to Carmel, Monterey or Salinas? On the way home I can get dinner outside Monterey, have one for the ditch and try for home.

Then I got to thinking about Mr. Norberg's idea to have all taxpayers contribute the proper cost of services which they use, everything equitable, no subsidies direct or indirect. Nothing wrong with that, is there? Government services would be paid for by the users, same as gas, electricity, water, phone or bank checks. Charges would be set up: calling Fire Wagons $1,000 first hour, $500 each additional (fellow could take a quick look at his policy and figure whether to let 'er burn or call the Chief); calling sheriff $250 if answered in one hour; $25 if answered later. Schools $80 per month per pupil, domestic or foreign; throwing beer bottles on the beach, $1.00 each; $7.00 if broken; stopping dog in front of Post Office $25. These would all be adjusted up or down as costs were determined.

After affairs in Monterey County were equitably adjusted, Mr. Norberg could move to Sacramento and set up proper charges for use of State services. He might even get rid of the welfare state.

Gentlemen:
This is in reply to your letter of October 28, 1960 concerning the water storage tank for the Navy's facility at Granite Canyon on the Coast Highway.

Due to the difficult terrain and the necessity of hauling the water to the site in tank trucks, the siting of this tank was a difficult problem. It is located approximately 60 feet off the highway with the top at an elevation of 9.4' above the highway grade. This location provides a 33' head at the point of the utilization, which is considered minimal for the purpose, being but 14.2 p.s.i.

In order to reduce to a minimum the unsightliness of this installation, the tank has been painted a dark green and screen of Acacia trees will be planted along the highway. These trees will effectively hide the tank in approximately two years.

From the foregoing, it can be seen that the Navy has complied with the original agreement to minimize the effects of this installation on the adjacent lands.

The Navy reiterates its interest in cooperation with the Commission in maintaining the natural beauty of this most scenic portion of the coast.

Very truly yours,
Joseph White,

Spirits Are Exorcised From Wharf's Production Of Bell, Book And Candle

Most of the magic is missing from the new Wharf Theatre production of Bell, Book and Candle, John van Druten's high-style comedy about modern witchcraft.

Possibly because it's relatively simple to stage, cheap to produce and requires a cast of only five, Bell, Book and Candle seems to be a popular potboiler (we recall here, one quite recent). Served with a flair for the light and fantastic, it can be a blithely diverting show; unfortunately, the pot seldom passes the simmer in the Wharf's current version. A general flatness of acting and a disengaging drag of pace is matched by unimaginative staging and lighting, so that the wit and sophistication of Mr. van Druten's book is pretty well exorcised.

Outstanding visual asset of the show is a sleek and stunning redhead, Julie Winters, handsomely playing the chief adept in a Manhattan clan of witches, Gillian Hollroyd, who loses her powers through love. In a succession of smashing outfits, Miss Winters is fine to watch; however, her acting and speech tend to the mechanical.

George Gordon's smoothness is somewhat curdled in the part of a New York publisher who is the object of Gillian's spell-casting, though Bill Houle's bounciness as the pranking warlock, Nicky Holroyd, intermittently raises the spirit of things. Peggy McVeary is fairly funny as Gillian's oddball Aunt Queenie, and Larry Nier — tricked out, for some reason, in goatish chin whiskers which suggest Uncle Sam or a Revolutionary War recruiting poster — bumbles around in the part of a witch-hunting author. Also in the cast, as Gillian's "familiar", Pyewacket, is an anonymous black cat, who gets carried on and off stage from time to time, looking understandably cross and bored.

Bob Carson has directed Bell, Book and Candle, sets and lighting are by Vern Soden. Mrs. Douglas D. Kahle is credited with Miss Winters' wardrobe, least mundane aspect of the production. Performances are Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 o'clock.—V.S.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Spiritual alertness based on an understanding of Truth brings freedom from evil of every kind. This theme will be set forth at Christian Science church services Sunday.

Introducing the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" will be the Golden Text from Matthew (24:4): "Take heed that no man deceive you."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include (201:7): "Truth makes a new creature, in whom old things pass away and 'all things are become new.' Passions, selfishness, false appetites, hatred, fear, all sensuality, yield to spirituality, and the superabundance of being is on the side of God, good."

From the Bible will be read (Isaiah 1:16, 17): "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; Learn to do well."

Mrs. Henry O. Hanson, chairman of the section, will present Mr. Tony Hrusa of Creative Crafts. Mr. Hrusa came to Carmel some years ago. Previously he was a commercial artist in San Francisco. He is a graduate of California School of Fine Arts and the Academy of Advertising Art in San Francisco. Mr. Hrusa will decorate the main club room and two Christmas tables with his products.

Last April, through The Carmel Foundation, the Monterey Peninsula Senior Craftsmen and Painters was organized. Mrs. Helen V. Bennett, a weaver, and president of the group, has arranged for senior craftsmen to demonstrate on Monday at four separate tables.

They are: Mrs. Eunice Messent, Christmas wreaths, as a favor to each club member she will present a pattern of her pine cone birds; Mrs. Mary Reise, driftwood sculpture, Mrs. Elsa Heymann, driftwood jewelery; Mrs. Roberta Walker, block printing. The Senior Craftsmen also will decorate a Christmas table setting for eight persons.

Tea hostesses assisting the membership chairman, Mrs. Wallace Lowry, will be Mrs. George Baxter and Mrs. Peter Kutschera.

Hospitality chairman, Mrs. Carl Rasmussen, will be assisted by Mrs. Edward C. Twitchell, Mrs. Fred Star, Mrs. Donald B. Walker and Mrs. C. Tod Singleton. Mrs. Walter Adams and Miss Mabel Stark will preside at the Punch Bowl:

Crileys In New Home

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Criley have moved into their recently completed home in Carmel Meadows. Also enjoying the new home by the shore are the Crileys' children, Megan, Donnie and Teddy.

Theodore Criley, who designed the house for his son and daughter-in-law, will come from Claremont with Mrs. Criley to spend the Thanksgiving holiday here.

Friday at the Jean Varda preview at the Feingarten Galleries, Mrs. Donald Criley was happily surprised when her husband purchased one of the Varda collages she admired for her Christmas present. Following the exhibition it will be hung in their new home.

Nancy And Dick Engaged

Reducing Sea Lion Population Difficult

(Continued from Page Five) feeding on numerous species of fish. It is a nuisance to fishermen as it fouls their nets and lines. It has no commercial value in California.

Reducing the sea lion population is difficult, expensive and ineffective. Many methods have been tried and others have been proposed. Certain difficulties are inherent in all methods:

1. Sea lions are capable of long migrations and are known to occur at least 300 miles from the nearest land. If killed off in any area they could move in from adjacent waters such as Oregon, Mexico, or from wildlife sanctuaries.

2. Sea lions have a good reproductive capacity. When abundant, the young suffer a very heavy mortality. If the population were lessened, survival would be greater and the ceiling would be reattained quickly. This has been demonstrated in the past.

3. The disposal of carcasses constitutes a serious problem. After death, the bodies usually wash ashore and create a health hazard and an odor nuisance, not to mention eliciting howls of anguish from nature lovers. The cost of burying or removing a carcass has been reported to average about $100.

4. Most methods of killing are brutal. They invariably result in a revulsion of public feeling and stricter protective laws.

5. The animals are extremely wary, particularly the California sea lion. Once shot at, they are difficult to approach.

At present both commercial and sport fishermen who are fishing from boats are permitted to kill sea lions that are interfering with their operations. Few animals are killed but the worst predators are driven away. The animals are very intelligent, and the California sea lion seems to have the ability to estimate the range of the firearm and the skill of the rifleman, and add to the fisherman's frustration by staying just out of range.

The present law gives the commission the authority to limit the numbers of sea lions if they threaten to exceed reasonable numbers. On the basis that the population is always pushing the ceiling, and that some animals could and should be harvested, the commission has made it known that it will issue permits to take sea lions for commercial purposes. During the 15 years that this offer has been in effect, numerous attempts at utilization have been made. All have failed and all for the same reason: under present economic conditions a dead sea lion is no good to anybody.

Nowadays no one can economically and profitably find a market for sea lions to be used for oil, meal, hides, trimmings, animal food (either mink or pet), trout food, or any other product. The only existing or potential market is for live sea lions for exhibition.

Often suggested is a bounty system to control sea lion numbers. This type of control has not been successful for other kinds of predators and has less chance of success in sea lion control. Bounties have been offered from time to time in other areas for both sea lions and seals. Considerable numbers of both have been killed and the bounty collected, but no reduction in the herds has resulted. The difficulty of recovering the body to show proof, and of disposing of the carcass, has discouraged most hunters. In many cases bounty funds remain untouched. With so few sea lions available to a California bounty hunter except on remote rookeries, he could not make a go of it economically.

If ever the sea lion herds should increase to the point where the prohibitive cost of control is deemed necessary, the control should be in the form of an organized program under departmental supervision in order to minimize the harmful effects of hit or miss killing.

With the Northern California population down to its longtime average, and with the Southern California herds concentrated around a few islands where fishing intensity is light we can conclude that a control program is not warranted at this time. It is doubtful indeed if anything short of a real slaughter could affect the overall abundance to as great an extent as natural variation, which has been demonstrated to be extremely great.

In spite of the recommendation against a control program at this time, some things should be done:

1. Continue present laws and policies without change.

2. Continue the periodic census to make sure that any unreasonable increase is detected.

3. Conduct a study on Steller sea lion food habits. A truly definitive food study would be far too costly and unnecessary, but by observations at such danger spots as river mouths it may be possible to determine if sea lions are damaging fishery resources locally; i.e., specific salmon runs.

4. If such is the case, institute local control programs to be conducted by the department.

5. Evaluate the economic loss to fishing gear by means of a system of fisherman interviews. A pattern for protection may be disclosed, which could result in some form of local control.

By law, the State of California has adopted a policy of protecting and maintaining its natural resources for the good of all the people. For better or worse, the sea lion is a natural resource, and as we see it a management policy for the sea lion could be summarized as follows:

To permit an equitable and harmonious balance between the sea lion population and the environment within which it lives, keeping in mind that depredations of food and sport fisheries of this state by excessive numbers of sea lions is contrary to the public good and economic welfare, but recognizing as well that the sea lion serves as a valuable control agent against the unlimited increase of inferior, competitive and predatory fish, and is furthermore of considerable esthetic value.

THANKSGIVING

*The pines sighed; the surf pounded faintly;
Her wild apple jelly had tang of the sea.
They had russet pork chops and yams maple gold;
Young laughter—all the small house could hold.*

*Her sorrows dim, their pain throbbing faintly
When she dreams of the pines; breathes tang of the sea.
Her thoughts are russet and scarlet and gold—
Her silent Thanksgiving flames through the cold.*

—PHOEBE W. HOFFMAN

I HEARD THE FEET OF RAIN

*I heard the feet of rain
Running among the leaves
Through the night,
And every little strain,
And all the little grieves,
Held me tight;
Until the running ceased,
And morning stars released
Quiet boon
Of peaceful comfort deep
Within, I fell asleep
To cricket's tune.*

—Bert Morehouse

WINDS OF LIBRA
Point Lobos

*Dead needles drift from antlered pines
To ghostly paths seamed with ancient forest roots.
From crouching cypress wild gray moss hangs restlessly
Sighing in the moan of tide.
Fluttering like struggling birds
Brown kelp swirls in writhing surf.
Fisted waves on granite drums
And hollowed echoes from the hounded cliffs
Thrum the ears
And numb the senses in a pall of sound.*

—Margaret G. Hindes

RESTLESS SEA

*The sand dunes of the desert sea
Are rippled into waves by wind—
Waves of amber, washed to lee
Of isles of thorn; and thrust of rock.
A surf bereft of sound and foam.*

*Here, too, lie men beneath the sands;
Their galleons lost while voyaging
Toward ever-beckoning western lands.*

—Mabel M. Heinson

COUNTRY MIDNIGHT

*How pure the night! How exquisitely still!
Here is no city clamor, no traffic-feud.
Of all this wonder-hush we drink our fill
And lean our souls upon this quietude!*

Hartnell College
Holds Exhibit Of
Myers Paintings

A Hartnell College art exhibit opening today will feature the work of the late Frank H. Myers of Pacific Grove, "... one of the outstanding marine painters in the country," according to Hartnell art instructor Leon Amyx, who is also a member of the Carmel Art Association.

Members of the Community are invited to see the exhibition on the gallery wall of the library. Open hours on weekdays are from 8:00 in the morning to 4:30 in the afternoon. Evenings the library is open 6:30 to 9:30 Mondays through Thursdays.

The month-long exhibit is another in the series arranged by the Hartnell Art Department and coordinated by Amyx.

A native of Cincinnati, Myers was widely known as a portrait painter before moving to Pacific Grove in 1940, according to Amyx.

"But he had also painted some social problems of the day," Amyx continued. "Scenes of the Roaring '20's and, later, people out of work."

"After he settled on the Monterey Peninsula, Myers became prominent as a teacher in the area. He was very influential among younger painters.

"In his final years," Amyx said, "Myers specialized in seascape and became famous because of them."

The Pacific Grove artist died in 1956. He had taught at the Art Academy of Cincinnati. He was on the faculty of the Pescadero Summer School of Art since 1948.

He has held one-man shows in several art centers, including San Francisco's M. H. de Young Museum and San Jose State College.

His paintings have been exhibited at St. Louis City Museum, Buffalo's Albright Museum as well as numerous galleries across the nation and in Paris.

"Myers was a realist of the highest order," Amyx declared, "understandable by the public at large."

Wermuth Retirement
Dinner Tickets
Go For "Sooners"

Tickets for Lieutenant Earl Wermuth's retirement dinner are being sold on a "first come, first served" basis Police Chief Clyde Klaumann emphasizes. Already a number of reservations have been received for the event which takes place at Highlands Inn, January 5 at 7:30 o'clock.

Tickets are available at the Carmel police station and ladies will be welcomed at the affair.

Lieutenant Wermuth has served on the police force since July 1, 1930, and he is the oldest member on the force in point of service. He will terminate his active duty at the end of this month, although his official retirement date is January 1. An accumulation of 21 days of vacation time, plus holidays he has spent on duty, mean that he need not report for duty during December.

Zoning ordinance to control the size of business structures in the Central District (zones C-1-C, C-1-S and C-2), so as to keep future structures in harmony with the long established scale of Carmel.

As we have recommended, such an amendment could produce the desired results by providing that hereafter no building site may exceed 8000 sq. ft. in area, and no structure may occupy more than 75% of a lot.

Another way would be simply to limit the bulk of the structure, as specifically authorized in Section 65800 of the State Planning law.

There is good reason to believe that such control is the earnest desire of the great majority of our citizens. We feel that without this and all other protection the law allows, Carmel is definitely open to inharmonious out-of-scale exploitation.

We earnestly recommend this matter of size control be initiated by the Council itself as provided by Section 65656, because if it should be included in any omnibus list of planning or zoning items formally submitted to the Council by the Planning Commission, it runs the risk of being held subject to the provisions of Sec. 65510, whereby the Council may only delete, but may not add nor change without referring it back to the Planning Commission. This could result in a legislative merry-go-round that might last for months, and it is highly desirable that any such delay be avoided.

CARMEL PERSON INJURED

Lillian Anzini who lives on Fisher Place received minor injuries in an accident on the Pacific Grove cut-off Monday afternoon, 4:40 o'clock. She was driving east and was 18 feet south of Presidio Boulevard when her car struck a parked construction truck according to the California Highway Patrol report.

P-TA Council CD Meeting

One hundred delegates from 26 schools in this area attended the Monterey Peninsula District P-TA Council luncheon at La Playa Hotel this week. Civil Defense was the subject of the program. Speaker was Lovilla Lalor of Santa Rosa, assistant director with the Federal government for civil defense and mobilization. In her talk she stressed the need for P-TA units to initiate civil defense programs with school systems, and suggested that CD classes be started for parents in each school. Mrs. Margaret Heldt of Pacific Grove is CD chairman in charge of this project on the Peninsula. Mrs. August Johnson of Carmel is the CD chairman for the P-TA District Council.

Lovilla Lalor pointed out the necessity for fathers and mothers to attend the CD classes in the schools. She said a family meeting place should be arranged in each home in preparation for a possible CD alert. Also children should be informed what to do and where to go in the event of an alert. Importance of the bloodmobile program and first aid instruction for parents were two other items stressed by the speaker.

Dr. James Niebel asked the council delegates to obtain reactions from parents to a proposed research program, under the direction of Stanford University Hospital, wherein urinalyses would be given to school children in this area to discover possible kidney infections. Stanford is asking for parents' opinions in this area and Palo Alto. Later they will chose which locality is best for the pilot program.

Stilwell School Bakery Party

Last Thursday morning Betty Weisel's third grade class at Joseph W. Stilwell School, Fort Ord, arrived in Carmel to see how a bakery functions. They had asked Aage and Helena Knudsen if they could visit Dolores Bakery a week or so before. The Knudsens told them they would be delighted to have a visit. Then came thank you notes, one from each member of the class of 24 pupils. Many of them had fine illustrations. There were cakes, hearts, flowers, houses, trees and one great big "I Love You." Customers to the bakery were delighted with the notes which the Knudsens displayed on one wall of their shop.

When the Stilwell third grade arrived they inspected the bakery, saw how everything was prepared, cooked and decorated. Then came a surprise. A long table at the back of the bake shop was ready for a party. Two large cakes had Welcome in the midst of other decoration. There were plates of cookies and chocolate milk for everyone.

The third graders left chorusing "Thank yous" as they waved goodbye from a school bus.

THANKSGIVING

*The pines sighed; the surf pounded faintly;
Her wild apple jelly had tang of the sea.
They had russet pork chops and yams maple gold;
Young laughter—all the small house could hold.*

*Her sorrows dim, their pain throbbing faintly
When she dreams of the pines; breathes tang of the sea.
Her thoughts are russet and scarlet and gold—
Her silent Thanksgiving flames through the cold.*

—PHOEBE W. HOFFMAN

I HEARD THE FEET OF RAIN

*I heard the feet of rain
Running among the leaves
Through the night,
And every little strain,
And all the little grieves,
Held me tight;
Until the running ceased,
And morning stars released
Quiet boon
Of peaceful comfort deep
Within, I fell asleep
To cricket's tune.*

—Bert Morehouse

WINDS OF LIBRA
Point Lobos

*Dead needles drift from antlered pines
To ghostly paths seamed with ancient forest roots.
From crouching cypress wild gray moss hangs restlessly
Sighing in the moan of tide.
Fluttering like struggling birds
Brown kelp swirls in writhing surf.
Fisted waves on granite drums
And hollowed echoes from the hounded cliffs
Thrum the ears
And numb the senses in a pall of sound.*

—Margaret G. Hindes

RESTLESS SEA

*The sand dunes of the desert sea
Are rippled into waves by wind—
Waves of amber, washed to lee
Of isles of thorn; and thrust of rock.
A surf bereft of sound and foam.*

*Here, too, lie men beneath the sands;
Their galleons lost while voyaging
Toward ever-beckoning western lands.*

—Mabel M. Heinson

COUNTRY MIDNIGHT

*How pure the night! How exquisitely still!
Here is no city clamor, no traffic-feud.
Of all this wonder-hush we drink our fill
And lean our souls upon this quietude!*

—Lucia Trent

Hartnell College
Holds Exhibit Of
Myers Paintings

A Hartnell College art exhibit opening today will feature the work of the late Frank H. Myers of Pacific Grove, "... one of the outstanding marine painters in the country," according to Hartnell art instructor Leon Amyx, who is also a member of the Carmel Art Association.

Members of the Community are invited to see the exhibition on the gallery wall of the library. Open hours on weekdays are from 8:00 in the morning to 4:30 in the afternoon. Evenings the library is open 6:30 to 9:30 Mondays through Thursdays.

The month-long exhibit is another in the series arranged by the Hartnell Art Department and coordinated by Amyx.

A native of Cincinnati, Myers was widely known as a portrait painter before moving to Pacific Grove in 1940, according to Amyx.

"But he had also painted some social problems of the day," Amyx continued. "Scenes of the Roaring '20s and, later, people out of work."

"After he settled on the Monterey Peninsula, Myers became prominent as a teacher in the area. He was very influential among younger painters.

"In his final years," Amyx said, "Myers specialized in seascape and became famous because of them."

The Pacific Grove artist died in 1956. He had taught at the Art Academy of Cincinnati. He was on the faculty of the Pescadero Summer School of Art since 1948.

He has held one-man shows in several art centers, including San Francisco's M. H. de Young Museum and San Jose State College.

His paintings have been exhibited at St. Louis City Museum, Buffalo's Albright Museum as well as numerous galleries across the nation and in Paris.

"Myers was a realist of the highest order," Amyx declared, "understandable by the public at large."

Wermuth Retirement
Dinner Tickets
Go For "Sooners"

Tickets for Lieutenant Earl Wermuth's retirement dinner are being sold on a "first come, first served" basis Police Chief Clyde Klaumann emphasizes. Already a number of reservations have been received for the event which takes place at Highlands Inn, January 5 at 7:30 o'clock.

Tickets are available at the Carmel police station and ladies will be welcomed at the affair.

Lieutenant Wermuth has served on the police force since July 1, 1930, and he is the oldest member on the force in point of service. He will terminate his active duty at the end of this month, although his official retirement date is January 1. An accumulation of 21 days of vacation time, plus holidays he has spent on duty, mean that he need not report for duty during December.

Zoning ordinance to control the size of business structures in the Central District (zones C-1-C, C-1-S and C-2), so as to keep future structures in harmony with the long established scale of Carmel.

As we have recommended, such an amendment could produce the desired results by providing that hereafter no building site may exceed 8000 sq. ft. in area, and no structure may occupy more than 75% of a lot.

Another way would be simply to limit the bulk of the structure, as specifically authorized in Section 65800 of the State Planning law.

There is good reason to believe that such control is the earnest desire of the great majority of our citizens. We feel that without this and all other protection the law allows, Carmel is definitely open to inharmonious out-of-scale exploitation.

We earnestly recommend this matter of size control be initiated by the Council itself as provided by Section 65656, because if it should be included in any omnibus list of planning or zoning items formally submitted to the Council by the Planning Commission, it runs the risk of being held subject to the provisions of Sec. 65510, whereby the Council may only delete, but may not add nor change without referring it back to the Planning Commission. This could result in a legislative merry-go-round that might last for months, and it is highly desirable that any such delay be avoided.

Carmel Citizens Committee
C. W. Fisher, President

CARMEL PERSON INJURED

Lillian Anzini who lives on Fisher Place received minor injuries in an accident on the Pacific Grove cut-off Monday afternoon, 4:40 o'clock. She was driving east and was 18 feet south of Presidio Boulevard when her car struck a parked construction truck according to the California Highway Patrol report.

PTA Council CD Meeting

One hundred delegates from 26 schools in this area attended the Monterey Peninsula District P-TA Council luncheon at La Playa Hotel this week. Civil Defense was the subject of the program. Speaker was Lovilla Lalor of Santa Rosa, assistant director with the Federal government for civil defense and mobilization. In her talk she stressed the need for P-TA units to initiate civil defense programs with school systems, and suggested that CD classes be started for parents in each school. Mrs. Margaret Heldt of Pacific Grove is CD chairman in charge of this project on the Peninsula. Mrs. August Johnson of Carmel is the CD chairman for the P-TA District Council.

Lovilla Lalor pointed out the necessity for fathers and mothers to attend the CD classes in the schools. She said a family meeting place should be arranged in each home in preparation for a possible CD alert. Also children should be informed what to do and where to go in the event of an alert. Importance of the bloodmobile program and first aid instruction for parents were two other items stressed by the speaker.

Dr. James Niebel asked the council delegates to obtain reactions from parents to a proposed research program, under the direction of Stanford University Hospital, wherein urinalyses would be given to school children in this area to discover possible kidney infections. Stanford is asking for parents' opinions in this area and Palo Alto. Later they will choose which locality is best for the pilot program.

Stilwell School Bakery Party

Last Thursday morning Betty Weisel's third grade class at Joseph W. Stilwell School, Fort Ord, arrived in Carmel to see how a bakery functions. They had asked Aage and Helena Knudsen if they could visit Dolores Bakery a week or so before. The Knudsens told them they would be delighted to have a visit. Then came thank you notes, one from each member of the class of 24 pupils. Many of them had fine illustrations. There were cakes, hearts, flowers, houses, trees and one great big "I Love You." Customers to the bakery were delighted with the notes which the Knudsens displayed on one wall of their shop.

When the Stilwell third grade arrived they inspected the bakery, saw how everything was prepared, cooked and decorated. Then came a surprise. A long table at the back of the bake shop was ready for a party. Two large cakes had Welcome in the midst of other decoration. There were plates of cookies and chocolate milk for everyone.

The third graders left chorusing "Thank yous" as they waved goodbye from a school bus.

PROCLAMATION

STATE OF CALIFORNIA ) ss.

County of Monterey )

WHEREAS, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross has invited my attention to a serious deficiency in the donations of blood during the current year, amounting to 103 pints less than have been withdrawn from the local reserves for assistance of Carmel residents;

AND WHEREAS, an adequate reserve of blood is absolutely vital to the lives and health of the people of Carmel;

AND WHEREAS, the continued enthusiastic participation of the people of Carmel in this important program is the only assurance that, when the urgent need arises, adequate supplies will be available to aid in the recovery of the sick and injured;

NOW THEREFORE, I Frank Putnam, Mayor of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, do urge and encourage all persons between the ages of 18 and 60 to register immediately as donors, and to give blood on Wednesday, December 7, 1960, at the Carmel Red Cross Headquarters, Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue, for the purpose of restoring the balance of supply and providing adequately against the urgent needs of our fellow citizens.

DONE AND SIGNED this 22nd day of November, A. D. 1960, in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, County of Monterey, State of California.

FRANK PUTNAM, Mayor,
City of Carmel-by-the-Sea,
California.

art gallery in Carmel so that visitors and residents could see the work of local painters. Last demand was for a "warm sea-water bath." This was a necessity for visitors to the town, he was sure, so many had asked if there were such a public bathing place.

Council To See Junipero Plan At Dec. Meeting

(Continued from Page One) council and citizens would have an opportunity to see Whitaker's plan before anything was done with Junipero Street south of Ocean, and Whitaker said, yes.

It was the disapproval of Admiral Fisher, Victor Velissaratos, and a large following of protesting citizens which scuttled the Bungalow plan.

Whitaker's plan does not have what the other plans fatally had, provision for parking in the center strip.

"After seeing the unattractive effect of center parking on Junipero, north of Ocean, I don't want to see it on Junipero, south," Whitaker told the Pine Cone.

He proposes to retain most of the trees in the center, plant more to bring the park strip nearer the intersection of Ocean, and to avoid raised bed and formal rockwork. "Perhaps outline it with boulders to protect it from traffic." It is to be a continuous planting, he added.

The council has already approved drainage installation on the west side, pipe has been obtained, "and since there was some good dirt available, we've stacked it near Seventh," Clayton Neill said, adding that the street would have to be brought to grade on that side.

Beetles, Ips, All Bad Bugs Begone, Spray Rig Is Here

The Carmel City Council officially believes in capital punishment for pine destroying turpentine beetles. The means of execution arrived early this week, a handsome spray rig costing $700 and worth many times its price.

The street department will put it into operation immediately in an effort to save the remaining pines on Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets. Twelve have already been cut down there as sick beyond rescue. The council has authorized their replacement with new young pines.

The rig is 300 gallon self-contained unit which can be operated under high pressure for spraying and low pressure for watering the trees and washing them down where they are subject to traffic dirt and fumes.

Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker has been experimenting with the three pines in front of his forge on Junipero Avenue by hosing them off from time to time, and he believes they do better than the ones coated with traffic dirt. "Cleaning off the needles appears to give the tree a better chance to breathe," he says. And it makes them look better.
